

UNIVERSITY OF ZAGREB SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

Plan of the course

Emergency Medicine

Academic year 2016/2017

izv. prof. dr. sc. Vesna Degoricija

I. COURSE AIMS

Recent decades have witnessed a dramatic increase if not explosion in utilization of emergency medicine, which has coincided with an expansion of medical technology to include numerous innovative diagnostic and treatment modalities. As a result, the task of the physician has multiplied exponentially in terms of difficulty. That said, the emergency physician still needs to excel in the traditional skills of obtaining a medical history and performing a physical examination under exacting time constraints. However, at the same time, he or she must be conversant with the latest permutations of biomedical technology and their application to both the emergency department setting and outpatient care.

The goals and objectives of this three weeks course in 11th semester are: to develop a critical understanding of:

1. the history and development of emergency medicine as a specialty
2. the approach to patient management in the Emergency department, including ABCs, triage, diagnosis and disposition
3. the principles and techniques of basic wound management
4. the basic principles and rationale for the initial management of patients with trauma
5. the evaluation of patients presenting to the Emergency department with common complaints, including: chest pain, dyspnea, abdominal pain, headache, fever and altered mental status.

The main topics of the course are: cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), basic and advanced life support, airway management, defibrillation, monitoring and treatment of cardiac arrhythmias, drugs in CPR, management of poisoned patient, basic trauma life support, surgical knots, immobilization, basic management of patient in coma and shock, pediatric life support, and advanced clinical thinking in emergency medicine.

II. COURSE STRUCTURE

Course hours:

Lectures: 4

Seminar: 30

Special clinical practicals: 34

Total hours: 68

Lectures	4 h
Seminars	30 h
• Case study	8 h
• ECG conference	2 h
• Interactive seminars lead by tutors	7 h
• Journal club	3 h
• Morbidity and mortality (M&M) conference	3 h
• Wrap up	3 h
• Pro and contra debate	4 h
Practical laboratories on manikins and simulators	18 h
• Basic life support and advanced life support	8 h
• Defibrillation	2 h
• Airway management and intubation	2 h

- I.V. line 1 h
- Splinting techniques 3 h
- Suturing 2 h

Practical 16 h

Four times 4-hours shifts in hospital emergency departments (departments of medicine, surgery, pediatric, and neurology) and one eight hour shift with the medical team in Emergency department Sisters of Mercy University Hospital . All shifts will be tutored by selected residents in the field supervised by teaching staff.

Total: 68 hours

Learning outcomes

By the end of the course students will be able to apply the knowledge and skills required to provide immediate aid, to recognize clinical emergency problems and their severity by focused history taking, developing differential diagnosis, and establishing treatment plans. They will develop competency in both procedural and resuscitative skills e.g. defibrillation, intubation of simulated airway, introducing/inserting an intravenous catheter into a simulated vein, suturing, placement of plaster splints onto manikins and fellow classmates.

The topics covered in this course of emergency medicine have been selected since they are representative of the depth and breadth of current emergency medicine practice. Our aim is to create an innovative emergency medicine teaching program that would meet the minimum essential requirements and standards in line with global trends in medical education, to replace a traditional knowledge-based concept of medical education with evidence-based medicine, and to introduce problem-solving skills through a case based teaching of medicine which demands that students use problem solving skills. Through the structure of this course we hope that we will stimulate both the critical thinking and acquisition of practical skills by our students. In addition, we hope to create a new educational climate and culture which actively encourages the attitudes which the doctors of tomorrow will need i.e. one where students and teachers alike recognize that it is their ethical obligation to constantly develop their knowledge.

IV. EXAMINATIONS

Examination

Exam includes test and 5 OSCE stations.

Test type: multiple-choice questions (20) with one correct answer. Time: one hour.

OSCE stations (time: three hours)

- Basic life support
- Drowned victim
- Monitoring of cardiac rhythm in acute myocardial infarction and defibrillation
- Fall off the cliff
- Injuries from a running speed boat
